MAY'S PROGRAM WILL FEATURE ARNOLD KEITH STORM

Arnold Keith Storm comes from a long line of folk musicians. His father, from whom he learned much of his older material, played the fiddle, guitar, and sang many old songs. Keith was about eight years old when he first began playing the harmonica. Later, he picked up the guitar and fiddle, learning to play all the instruments by watching his father. As he grew older, he joined the other family musicians who played for square dances and other local social gatherings.

In addition to his traditional sources, Keith also learns songs from the current folk and bluegrass song books, and even writes some of his own.

As usual, the program will be held at 8:30 PM on the 2nd Friday (May 13) at the Washington Ethical Society, 7750 16th St. N.W. (near Kalmia). Admission is free to FSGW members and $2 for others.

SPECIAL EVENT - - - JOE HEANEY IN CONCERT

Joe Heaney, known as probably the greatest living singer of traditional Irish songs, has lived in the U.S. since 1960. At last, his own government is recognizing what a cultural treasure he is, and is trying to make arrangements to support him, so that he can teach his songs to others. Before he leaves the U.S. for the summer, perhaps forever, we in Washington will have a chance to hear him again in a concert sponsored by FSGW on Sat. May 7, at 8:30PM at the Washington Ethical Society—address above. (We thank the National Endowment for the Arts for their support of this concert.) Joe's songs are mostly old ones, but he does include a few written in the 19th and 20th centuries. Many he learned as a boy from members of his family and the surrounding community; others he learned on his travels—he visits Ireland every year. His familiarity with the history and politics of his songs means we'll learn from him as well as enjoy his music. Come hear Joe Heaney. -Nan

NATIONAL FOLK FESTIVAL - AT WOLF TRAP

IMPORTANT- Sometime this month you will receive a copy of Tradition published by the National Council for the Traditional Arts(formerly the NFFA). There is a lot of information which you should read if you are interested in seeing the festival expand and grow. Please note: All volunteers this year will be recruited from members of the organization so read the article about membership and volunteers carefully. Remember, if you join, you get a copy of the new Folk Festival Calendar free.

HISTORIC PRESERVATION DAY AT GLEN ECHO

On May 15 at Glen Echo Park there will be a dance from 4-7 in the afternoon under an open air pavillion. Bob Dalsemer will be calling squares and contras and the admission is free. The event is Historic Preservation Day--and traditional country dancing is included in the schedule as a tradition well-worth preserving. Other activities include exhibits, slide shows, films, and student performances. For more information or directions, call 492-6229.
